

Jeu Green

[b]Stoughton, MA[/b]

Jeu Green, a 21 year old lyricist/producer/studio-owner from the South Shore has many fresh and unique characteristics to add to the music industry. Writing music since he can remember and a graduate of The New England Institute of Art for audio production, Jeu has the knowledge of how to work a studio from every angle. The owner and engineer/producer of Scrap Yard Recording Studio in Avon, Jeu has been mixing it up (literally) with some of Boston's hottest artists. Everyone like Salemme, BBG, Chilla Jones , Prano, Supastar LT, Usual Suspectz, Millyz and more have had records mixed by Jeu Green.

Targeting his peers with his music, Jeu loves to be heard and have people sing along with his words. He likes to escape from all the "bullshi*t" in life and just let loose and have fun on his records. His new CD Demonstration consists of his three singles that are ready to rock in the clubs of Boston and Worldwide .

Teaming up with friend and producer OD, they came up with some classic tunes. A song dedicated to drinking and smoking, "Get Wasted" (featuring Salemme) has a unique sound you would recognize every time you hear it and makes you wanna put your hands up and party. Producer OD killed it again with the production of club hits "Cool Dude" and "Watch Me Do That" (featuring Ray Ray). "Cool Dude", a getting money anthem with a hook that chants, "if you got cash pull it out and throw it up," gets the attention of the ballers in the club. "Watch Me Do That" is a track for the ladies that boasts "watch me do that, I don't think that he could that!" Ray Ray spices it up with his vocals as always.

Surrounding himself with the right people, and taking the right steps, with the help of the fans Jeu Green is ready to be heard in the industry.

For additional information visit our profile on newenglandhiphop.com
©2013 newenglandhiphop.com