

S Go Hard

Mandeville, Jamaica/ Hartford, CT

Sherri (S Go Hard) Johnson was born on March 10th 1985 in Jamaica in a town called Mandeville, located in the Parish of Manchester. She grew up around music and had many influences. At the age of six she was fascinated with music. Sherri lived a couple houses away from (Reggae Legend Garnet silk, she would make frequent visits to his home and was amazed by the way that he created music. Sherri would also watch her uncle (Reggae) a DJ-Artist, write /record music. While all the kids played outside, she would sit for hours an listen to his "Tunes"(Tracks). Sherri participated in talent shows in Jamaica an performed in plays. Hoping that one day her dream would come true, and one day her music would be heard she would write music when everything else was not so great in her household. Sherri grew up in a broken home and would use music to escape.

Sherri moved to the United States at the age of nine, and resided in Hartford Connecticut with her mother an younger sister. Music was important in Sherri's life; she would spend a lot of time in her room listening, writing songs and poetry. Sherri wanted to pursue her dreams but was in a different environment an didn't know where to start. The music scene was different. There was Rap, R&B, and hip hop. Connecticut really didn't have any reggae artist but there Dancehall scene was definitely there.

In 2009 Sherri (S go Hard) Johnson decided to follow her dream. After getting familiar with the music scene in Connecticut an associating herself with some local Artist, Sherri decided that she would pursue her dreams. Sherri would perform at open mics, get here music circulated through mixtapes and promotions, an one day get the respect an recognition that she hoped for. Sherri (S go Hard) Johnson would go down different lanes an taking different routes to pursue her dream. Sherri would find her sound and make different kind of music for people in different walks of life.

For additional information visit our profile on newenglandhiphop.com
©2013 newenglandhiphop.com